OUR ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS COMPLETE THE YEAR'S WORK

A year's work in the elementary schools came to a triumphant end during this week. Everyone was happy and contented, for the teachers and children had worked hard in order not to be found wanting when the long expected time came.

Promotion certificates were issued to all the children from the kindergarten up to the seventh grades. Nearly everyone was moved up a step. Each certificate was received as something very valuable, and if it bore the word "honorary" it was really a treasure.

The eighth graders from the Crocker, the Woodrow Wilson and the Jefferson schools were awarded diplomas of graduation entitling them to enter high school. Altogether there were one hundred thirteen of them, forty-four from the Crocker, thirty-six from the Woodrow Wilson, and thirty-three from the Jefferson. These are in addition to about thirty-five who graduated last January, through a test given at that time.

Those graduating now took a test, too, and all of them passed it successfully, a number standing very high and a few others not so high, but everyone did his or her best, and who can do more?

The leaders this year were Roy Thorpe of the Crocker; David H. Johnston of the Woodrow Wilson; and Lila Silacci of the Jefferson. Each of the leaders were awarded recognition of five dollars by District Superintendent W. J. Savage, through the favor of the good angel.

Looking back over the past year, it is a pleasure to find ample evidence that the leaders of each year have maintained their leadership in the struggles that came after their grammar school graduations. There is little doubt that the leaders of this year will strive, with a like determination, to win recognition for hard work, every time an opportunity presents itself.

Leaders are needed in every line, all the time, and one of the ideas of our schools has been to find and reward them. The good angel takes pride in those who have been identified.

During the year, besides the regular school work, no meritorious outside enjoyment has been omitted. A right time was found for every activity. Each eighth grade, accompanied by the District Superintendent, enjoyed a memorable Tamalpais outing, lasting all day and a part of the night. This is something, worth while, not done by other eighth graders, and old Tamalpais is so near, so beautiful, and so inviting, whether it rains or shines.

During the year the Parent-Teachers' Associations have been very considerate of the eighth graders and have entertained them in numerous pleasant ways. For this kindness every boy and girl is really grateful. Their teachers, Mrs. Ella Loomis, Mrs. Dora B. Barker, Miss Marion Earle and Charles Wauhaub of the Woodrow Wilson; Miss Aileen Suber and Miss Veleata King of the Crocker, and Miss Marie Traynor, Miss Muriel Mosconi, and Rose Nilson of the Jefferson, have done their utmost, in a friendly way, to advance them and as a consequence there is true appreciation for every teacher, too.

The Crocker graduation took place in the auditorium of the Jefferson Union high school on Tuesday evening, June 10, before a large audience, and the following program was rendered with spirit, under the green and white:

March—"In Lilac Time."—Welcome—Graduating Class. Salutation—Janet Bernardi. "Syvia"—Girls of the Graduating Class. The Builders' Creed—Members of Graduating Class. "Song of Spring"—Graduating Class. COUNCIL MEETS IN REGULAR SESSION

At the regular meeting of the City Council last Monday evening, all members were present, Mayor H. H. Smith presiding.

A communication was received from the Board of Fire Commissioners, informing the City Council that Mr. A. Romer, of 159 Santa Barbara avenue, had resigned from Station No. 1.

Another communication received from the Board of Fire Commissioners recommended that the Council purchase an inhalator for the fire department. This recommendation was referred to the fire committee.

Mr. Armando Leal wrote the Council in regard to sand being thrown in front of his garage at 398 Gutterberg street by automobiles turning the corner at Bellevue and Gutterberg. This matter was referred to the street committee.

The ordinance committee reported that the ordinance concerning peddlers' licenses was well shaped up, and would be introduced at the next meeting.

The street committee reported that the streets throughout the city were being cleared of weeds and that the work would soon be finished. This year two crews were put on, one for the Crocker Tract district and one for the Vista Grande district. The work has been divided up as much as possible as there are many out of employment at the present time.

The library committee reported another record month, 2,700 books being issued.

Health Officer Dr. F. P. Callen submitted his monthly report, which was ordered filed.

The district superintendent, the teachers, the graduates and the members of the elementary board of trustees appreciate the uniform courtesy of the Principal, Prof. James M. Ferguson, his faculty and the members of the Jefferson Union high school for their generosity in permitting the graduates the free use of the auditorium for the rehearsals and for the graduation. This favor is particularly worthy while, as it was granted while the high school people were preparing for and conducting their own graduation.

Flag Day

AND OUR HOMES ARE OUR CASTLES

Down deep in every man's heart and in the soul of every woman, there exists a desire for a home that is all their own. There is an ever constant longing for a plot of ground with a house on it that they can gaze at with pride and say, "This is Our Home." A home is a shelter from more than the elements. Home ownership adds to the financial security and social prestige of a family as can nothing else.

It's easy to own a home in Daly City. Here you will find many willing hands extended to aid you in buying or building, to show you how to avoid mistakes, and even to help you in financing your home. Every year the number of home owners is increasing as people come to realize how simple the buying or building of a home really is.

What home ownership means to the individual, the family and the community has been well summed up by the President of the United States, Herbert Hoover, in the following words:

"A family that owns its home takes a pride in it, maintains it better, gets more pleasure out of it, and has a more wholesome, healthful and happy atmosphere in which to bring up children."

"The home owner has a constructive aim in life. He works harder outside of his home; he spends his leisure more profitably, and his family live a finer life, enjoy more of the comforts and cultivating influences of our modern civilization."

"A husband and wife who own their home are more apt to save. They have an interest in the advancement of a social system that permits the individual to store up the fruits of his labor. As direct taxpayers, they take a more active part in local government. Above all, the love of home is one of the finest instincts and the greatest inspirations of our people."

As will be seen by the page advertisement elsewhere in this issue of the Daly City Record, which is sponsored by a group of our progressive business and professional men, a request has been made for an exchange of ideas on this subject. The end sought is to interest those not now home owners, especially the younger married people, in giving the matter serious thought.

Buying at home affords an excellent opportunity to broaden the vision and extend the business education to an extent never fully realized until participation therein has been experienced.

Become a home owner here in Daly City, and become a permanent fixture. It is a safe and sound investment.

JEFFERSON HIGH ISSUES DIPLOMAS

Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock the graduation exercises of the class of 1930 of the Jefferson Union High School were held in the High School Auditorium. Long before the time for the beginning of the program every seat was occupied, and late comers had to be satisfied with standing room along the walls both on the main floor of the auditorium and in the balcony. Many were not able to gain admittance.

The exercises consisted of student talent entirely, and reflected the greatest credit upon the students and the school.

The stage had been artistically decorated with flowers under the supervision of Miss Effie Potter, who is the teacher of art in Jefferson.

Before the graduates were presented, Mr. James Ferguson, Principal of the High School, requested that applause by the audience be reserved until all the members of the class had received their diplomas. Consequently, the ceremony had an added dignity.

The girl graduates were dressed in white sweaters and white skirts, with blue and white kerchiefs. The boys wore white flannel trousers and navy blue coats. There were 44 members in the class.

The musical numbers had been prepared under the direction of Miss Bertha Holt, instructor in music, who acted as accompanist during the exercises.

Following is the order in which the program was rendered:

Entrance of graduates. Invocation—Rev. W. C. Spencer. Welcoming address—Nell Van Heusden, president of senior class. "Constructive Statesmanship of George Washington"—Miriam Bentley, valedictorian. CONGRATULATIONS AND THANKS ARE EXTENDED

The members of the Crocker P. T. A. wish to extend to the members and teachers of the graduating class of the Crocker school our heartiest congratulations for the work you have done, and the impressive exercises of Tuesday evening. We are sorry to see you go, as we have enjoyed working with you and for you, and have appreciated your kindness and cooperation with us during the past year. We hope that your journey through life will be as happy as the years you have spent in the Crocker school, and that your quest for further education will be as satisfactory as that which your grammar school teachers have so kindly and laboriously given to you.

BOARD REQUESTS A LEGAL OPINION ON REDISTRICTING

The San Mateo county board of supervisors, at their session last Monday, voted to refer the proposed ordinance on the redistricting of San Mateo county to District Attorney Franklin Swart for a legal opinion. District Attorney Swart was asked to have his opinion ready by next Monday, when the board again meets.

The ordinances, three in number, one covering the redistricting of the county and establishing the boundary line of the five supervisorial districts, the second covering the establishment of the road districts, and the third the townships, were presented by Attorney Charles Kirkbride of San Mateo, one of the attorneys who was active in the court redistricting proceedings and which were brought to a close two weeks ago when Judge Welch of Santa Clara county rendered an opinion, which made it mandatory upon the board of supervisors to either pass the ordinance redistricting the county or else submit the matter to the people at an election.

Action was taken at the afternoon session of the board of supervisors which resulted in the proposed ordinance on redistricting being referred to District Attorney Franklin Swart for a legal opinion.

EAGLES' BOOSTER COMMITTEE PLANNING A THEATRE PARTY

On Wednesday evening the booster committee of the Eagles met at Mr. Ed Trier's residence on Woodrow street, where a very successful meeting was held. The principal order of business for the evening was the outlining of plans for the Eagles' theatre party, to be given at the Daly City Theatre on Wednesday evening, July 20. From reports on advance ticket sales, this party is going to be one of the outstanding affairs of the year.

A. J. Dalton, chairman of the program committee, reported good progress on ads being secured for the program, and wishes to thank all subscribers, but is still in a position to take care of all that have not subscribed.

The committee has been assured that alterations on the theatre now under way will be completed in time to take care of this affair.

Plans were also made for holding a class initiation to be known as the Convention class, on Thursday evening, July 17. The committee also pledged themselves to make this one of the largest classes in the history of the Aerie. The following members were present: Fred Collins, W. A. Geren, A. J. The boys and girls who enjoyed the picnic were: Marie Harper, Lena Marciocchi, Myrtle Daugherty, Lucy Anarrozabietia, Evelyn Ferrera, Rose Ambrazio, Virginia Larkin, Gertrude Allen Virginia Stevens, Anna Siragusa, Mildred Kennedy, Esther Ross, Iris, Winn, Rose Perondi, Dorothy Irons, Irene Orr, Petrina Passafiume, Gene Evans, Edward Kiep, William Rohrs, Angel Torres, Allen Brush, James Walton, Clayton Dillon, Roy Beehler, David Johnston, William Lewis, Tom Hogan.

STREET CAR STRIKES AUTO

An Oakland sedan driven by M. J. Alexander, of 1677 Bush street, San Francisco, and owned by Ella Burns, was struck by a Market Street car, at Mission between Wellington and Crocker, directly in front of the Michigan garage. Mrs. H. Lindolph, an occupant of the car, was cut by flying glass and was rendered first aid by the police and a fireman, but refused to go to the hospital. The street car struck the rear end of the automobile, forcing it to strike a tow car standing at the curb, breaking the steering gear of the tow car.

THE EAGLES' NEST

The regular meeting of the Fraternal Order of Eagles was held on Thursday evening of last week.

Brothers Christian, Gilmore, Vandergoult, Seabank and Nagel were reported on the sick list.

A special booster committee meeting was held at Brother Collins' home on Irvington street on Tuesday evening.

The Associated Aerie committee reported a meeting in South San Francisco on Tuesday, May 24. Final plans for the Grand convention were made and a large marching club was formed. San Mateo county will be represented by a beautiful floral float. The next Associated Aerie meeting will be held in Redwood City on the third Friday of June.

The Aerie installed the recently elected officers into their respective chairs. B. G. Kost, President; George Connolly, Vice-president; Ed Heim, Junior Past President; Wm. Sunderland, Chaplain; M. Nessier, Conductor; Sturla, Secretary; Kunze, Treasurer; Dr. Cline, Physician; Michelson, Trustee; Reardon, Outside Guard; and Hopkins, Inside Guard.

Many visiting brothers from Redwood City, San Mateo, South San Francisco and other points were in attendance.

The following committees were appointed by President Kost: Grievance committee, Bolger, Shaw and Rodenberger; Social Committee, Harper; Booster committee, Collins; Auditing committee, Patton, Geron and Dalton.

Brother Harper of the social committee cleared the hall and set an elaborate banquet. Talks were made by visiting and local brothers.

Tickets are being sold for the big theatre and stage party to be held at the Daly City Theatre on July 30. This promises to be the biggest thing scheduled for Daly City this summer, and rightly so, because the best program of the season has been arranged. Be sure to get your tickets early.

PHYSICALLY HANDICAPPED CHILD A FINANCIAL BURDEN

A child who is physically unfit for school work constitutes one of the most expensive luxuries the taxpayers have to support. The state is spending millions of dollars upon the education of its children. Every child attending the public schools who is not physically fit, who has diseased adenoids or tonsils, whose teeth are decayed, whose sight or hearing are defective, or who suffers from any other physical defect, is a source of expense to the taxpayer, for he cannot derive the benefits that educational facilities provide.

Parents of children who will enter school for the first time next fall should, in justice to themselves and fellow taxpayers, take advantage of the opportunity that is being offered under the auspices of the California Congress of Parents and Teachers for securing free physical examinations of such children. A sick child or a child having physical defects can not be educated properly until he is made well, or until his physical defects are corrected.

Once more the irony of fate is recorded in the death by accidental asphyxiation in a bathroom of an aviator, who had braved the dangers of his profession many times. It serves to show that when things go right we are safe anywhere, but when they go wrong we are safe nowhere.

The shrewd politician seldom hops on the band wagon until he is fairly convinced of its identity.

"FATHERS OF MEN" TO BE SERMON TOPIC

The following are the sermon topics for Calvary Baptist Chapel, 5724 Mission street, for next Sunday: In the morning, "Fathers of Men;" in the evening, "The Bolshevism of the Bat."

Calvary Baptist Chapel rejoices in the coming of Miss Madie Irons as director of music. The bay region is known for its high standard of musical programs, and with her coming, the Chapel can now keep step with the best of programs. Miss Irons is highly trained in her work and those who have already enjoyed her programs will not want to miss the many treats she has in store for us. Daly City should take advantage of this opportunity.

We have heard much about the Prodigal Son and the Scarlet Woman, but how about the Prodigal Father? This parable of a Prodigal Father probably speaks best for itself: "A certain man had two sons, and the younger of them said to his father: 'Father, give me the portion of thy time, and thy attention, and thy companionship, and thy counsel which falleth to me.' And he divided unto them his living in that he paid the boy's bills and sent him to a select preparatory school and to dancing school and to college and tried to believe that he was doing his full duty by the boys."

And not many days after the father gathered all his interests and aspirations and ambitions and took his journey into a far country into a land of stocks and bonds and securities and other things which do not interest a boy and there he wasted his precious opportunity of being a chum to his own son. And when he had spent the very best of his life and had gained money but failed to find satisfaction there arose a mighty famine in his heart; and he began to be in want of sympathy and real companionship. And he went and joined to one of the clubs of that country; and they elected him chairman of the house committee and president of the club and sent him to Congress. And he would fain have satisfied himself with the husks that other men did eat and no man gave unto him any real friendship.

But when he came to himself he said: "How many men of my acquaintance have boys whom they understand and who understand them, who talk about their boys and associate with them and seem perfectly happy in the comradeship of their sons, and I perish here with heart hungry? I will arise and go to my son, and will say unto him, Son, I have sinned against heaven and in thy sight: I am no more worthy to be called thy father: make me as one of thy acquaintances." And he arose and came to his son. But, while he was yet afar off, his son saw him and was moved with astonishment, and instead of running and falling on his neck, he drew back and was ill at ease. And the father said unto him: "Son, I have sinned against heaven and in thy sight: I am no more worthy to be called thy father. Forgive me and now let me be your friend." But the son said: "Not so; I wish it were possible, but it is too late. There was a time when I wanted companionship and counsel and to know things, but you were too busy. I got companionship and I got the information, but I got the wrong kind, and now, alas, I am wrecked in soul and body; there is no more heart left in me and there is nothing you can do for me. It is too late, too late, too late!"

Sunday is Father's Day! All fathers should take note of this parable. It truly speaks for itself. May the fathers on this, the day that is set aside for them in their honor, make it also a day of inventory. It is the prayer of the writer that no father in Daly City will find himself a parallel to the parable of the Prodigal Father!

AHRENS CONTINUES TO LEAD BATTERS

Del Ahrens increased his batting average from .433 to .485 Sunday, giving him an advantage of 15.2 per cent over Cruchoff, his closest competitor.

Many changes took place in the standings of the local batters after the game. Among the most noticeable was Plansky's advance. "Mo" moved from sixth to third. Ahrens and Rettig were the only players to remain in their last week's position. The team's average is .305.

The players' percentages follow:

	AB.	H.	Pct.
Ahrens	33	15	.485
Cruchoff	33	11	.333
Plansky	37	12	.324
Sloan	27	8	.296
Hawley	24	7	.292
Kennedy	28	8	.286
Rettig	39	11	.282
Toole	17	4	.235
Fabin	10	3	.300

ALBERT WHITESIDE PASSES ON

The family of Albert Whiteside, of Bepler street, are receiving the condolences of their friends upon his death, which occurred June 10. Mr. Whiteside was 74 years of age. He leaves a wife, Alice Whiteside, to mourn his passing. He was a native of Chattanooga, Tennessee. Death was due to a heart attack.

A judge in Vancouver, Washington, believes that when a man and wife are divorced, all property should be divided 50-50. So he ordered in a decree given Mrs. Annie Hinkalman, in which she was awarded an equal share of all the family possessions, even to half the milk from the family cow.

A statistical shark has figured that Americans drink 75,000 cups of coffee every second. And no telling how many saucers.

WONDERFUL TIMES AT THE BETHEL FULL GOSPEL MISSION

Praise the Lord Jesus Christ our Savior, we have had some glorious meetings since Bethel Mission opened its doors to the public on June 1. Each meeting has been well attended and the spirit of the Lord has been with us. Last Sunday morning our pastor spoke to us about Jericho. When Joshua with the children of Israel besieged this city it fell, not by the might of the army of the Israelites but by the power of God. Not a shot was fired at the city of Jericho, yet its great strong walls were all broken down, and broken down flat. If you don't believe it, read the story for yourself in your Bible (Joshua 6th Chapter.) We know that there is no stone wall around Daly City like there was around Jericho, but yet there is a wall, a wall which is just as hard or even harder than stone, and we are convinced that Jesus has power enough to break it down. In fact He has started to do it already by giving us these wonderful meetings.

In the evening we took a ride on the Salvation Railroad. The trip took us past Calvary Mountain, along the River of Life, and through the Garden of Paradise to the Pearly White City. If you have never been on this trip, come join with us this Sunday and learn full particulars of the price and where and when to catch the trains. We know we are going to have our Mission crowded at all services Sunday, so come early and get a good seat.

WILLIAM SAVIDGE, Pastor.

DALY CITY WINS FOURTH STRAIGHT

Hitting the ball hard and often, the Daly City Merchants defeated Pathe News, 9 to 4, last Sunday at the high school diamond.

The local team obtained sixteen safeties, at least one hit in every inning. "Mo" Plansky led the attack with three singles in five trips to the plate. Del Ahrens, the club's leading hitter, garnered two for three.

"Specks" Fabin, the Merchants' pitcher, had very little trouble with the opposing batters after a dubious start. Although he struck out only one man, the ten hits he allowed were kept well scattered. Only one of the visitors' safeties went for more than one base, Fisher's triple in the seventh inning.

ANNOUNCEMENT

At the primaries August 26 I am respectfully asking the voters of San Mateo county to express their confidence in my integrity and my administration as Sheriff by returning me to the office.

It was my fortune to be chosen sheriff after the untimely death of my able predecessor Thomas C. "Brick" McGovern who had built up a very capable organization. Disaster however, robbed me of two of my most efficient deputies a few months after I took office. Consequently I was called upon to fill this gap in such a manner as would assure continued success and confidence in the office.

In meeting this difficult task my lifelong residence in San Mateo county, my wide acquaintance with the people here and my knowledge of local conditions served me in good stead. The organization was again completed, and in three and one half years as sheriff has, I think you will agree, served well.

We enjoy the absolute confidence and esteem of every police department in California and especially those of the peninsula, including San Francisco. We have a criminal identification bureau by comparison second to none, and an investigation bureau that has proved most efficient.

Records will show that San Mateo county has been singularly free of crime in the past few years, and what crime has occurred has been dealt with quickly, effectively and humanely. We have, in doing this, I believe, had our part in making the county attractive to new industry and commerce, thus aiding materially in the progress and general development which, the 1930 census reveals, has placed San Mateo county first in California in progressiveness.

We are engaged now, and have partially completed a comprehensive library of criminology which, when ready, will prove invaluable in the solution of crime and the apprehension of criminals. A change of administration now would retard this work, so urgently needed by able investigators of my staff, who are helping to compile it.

The civil department of the sheriff's office has long enjoyed a reputation for efficiency and tact in dealing with business houses and individuals of the county. This phase of the office is most important to county business and finance and has been developed rapidly to meet the ever increasing demands made upon it.

It is my greatest ambition to serve this county to the utmost of my ability, particularly since it always has been and always will be home to me, and the goodwill and confidence of my neighbors is a source of personal pride.

Your co-operation at the primaries, August 26th, will continue my earnest endeavor to keep this a municipality where homes, honest industry and wholesome sport may thrive in security.

JAMES J. McGRATH, Sheriff.

COUNTY CORONER MCGOVERN WILL SEEK RE-ELECTION

Dr. J. C. McGovern, San Mateo county coroner, will be a candidate to succeed himself in the office to which he was appointed three years ago, it is announced by officials of the McGovern Club, with headquarters in South San Francisco. Branches of the club are being organized in San Mateo and Redwood City, it was announced.

Andrew Hinding, first mayor of South San Francisco and a pioneer business man of the county, is among those sponsoring the campaign of Dr. McGovern. Mrs. E. C. Peck past president of the San Mateo County Federation of Women's Clubs and for many years a leader in social service work, is also among the founders of the club sponsoring Dr. McGovern's campaign.

Dr. McGovern, a graduate of the University of California, is a native of San Mateo county, born at Half Moon Bay, where his father, the late Patrick F. McGovern, settled in 1857. He attended Lowell high school, San Francisco, before there were high schools in San Mateo county, and when Governor C. C. Young was a teacher at Lowell. He is a brother of the late Sheriff Thomas C. ("Brick") McGovern.

Dr. McGovern has never before been a candidate for any county office, he having been appointed in 1927 to succeed the late Dr. W. C. Brooke.

Some scientist has figured it out that children of fathers above the age of 40 have better chances of making a name for themselves than have the offspring of younger men. The idea may be that the older fathers can not hold a bad example before the kids so long.

ASSEMBLYMAN PARKMAN WILL SEEK RE-ELECTION

So many of my friends have urged me to again become a candidate for the Assembly that I have decided to do so, and shall therefore file within three next few days.

Reapportionment of the Senate and Assembly districts this year presents so many problems that are serious to the taxpayers, and in fact to all citizens whether they are property owners or not, that I feel that the interests of my home county can best be served by a man who has had experience in legislative procedure.

Under reapportionment the assembly will be dominated by the larger centers of population, while the "Cow Counties," or agricultural districts, will control the Senate. The re-alignment of boundary lines and the number of assemblymen who will be dropped out or who will run for the Senate or other offices, will result in at least one-half of the assembly being new, inexperienced legislators.

My friends feel, therefore, that it is very important to San Mateo county to have a representative who knows how to do things, and who is known by the "old-timers" and the officials whose friendship means so much to a law-maker who is trying to get results for his constituents.

When I first went to Sacramento as an assemblyman I soon found out that inexperience and lack of acquaintance were serious handicaps, but in my second session I was given some of the important committees, where bills of importance to our development are considered.

I was appointed chairman of reapportionment, which might have been very important to San Mateo county had congressional reapportionment been considered, or had there been such controversy over state re-alignment. The problems of congressional reapportionment will come up in the 1931 session.

I was appointed also to ways and means, which is one of the most important committees—commerce and navigation, which is most vital to San Francisco and San Mateo counties—fish and game, which considers all bills affecting not alone sportsmen, but also the tremendous fishing and canning business in California. Banking, county government, public morals, and medical and dental laws were my other committees.

The longer a man serves the better his committees, and San Mateo county deserves representation on the best.

After my first session I decided that there were entirely too many bills introduced and that a legislator should confine himself to such bills as are considered necessary by the large majority of the people he represents for the sound development of his district.

It is a tremendous task and responsibility to analyze and vote intelligently upon two thousand or more bills, but I tried earnestly and honestly to give every person or interest affected a fair hearing and a square deal, keeping in mind at all times the best interests of San Mateo county, California, and the Nation.

This I pledge myself to again do if re-elected as the representative of Assembly District Nineteen at the Primary Election to be held on August 26, 1930.

County Redistricting

On June 2, 1930, the following resolution was passed by unanimous vote of all four of the members of the Board of Supervisors present, viz.:

RESOLVED, THAT, WHEREAS the public interest will be conserved by the passage of a new ordinance redistricting the county of San Mateo into supervisor districts:

"NOW, THEREFORE, it is hereby ordered that a new ordinance be prepared and presented to this board of supervisors for its consideration at its meeting to be held next Monday, June 9, 1930, which said ordinance shall provide for the consolidation of the territory now situated within the Fourth and Fifth supervisor districts into one supervisor district to be known as the Fourth supervisor district, and will also provide for a supervisor district to be known as the Fifth supervisor district and which shall include all territory now within the city of Burlingame and contiguous unincorporated territory now lying northwesterly of same:

"And it is further ordered that the attorneys for the respective parties to the redistricting litigation now pending in the superior court of the state of California, in and for the county of California, be and they are hereby requested to co-operate in giving effect to such new ordinance when passed."

These supervisors who voted in favor of this resolution were: Supervisors Thomas L. Hickey, Rosalie M. Brown, John W. Poole, and Manuel Francis. Supervisor C. F. Thompson was not present.

The program outlined in the resolution was a fair compromise of the controversies and litigation which has taken place during the past six years. The necessity for redistricting was emphasized by the results of the 1930 census which gives to the Fourth and Fifth supervisor districts 3,435 people and to the first three supervisor districts 73,700.

Ordinances in strict accord with said resolution of June 2, 1930, were presented for passage last Monday, but supervisor Thomas L. Hickey refused to vote for them unless they had received the approval of the District Attorney.

The District Attorney has consistently been on the side opposing redistricting throughout the past controversies, and refused to attend an executive session of the Board on June 2, 1930, at which time four members of the board discussed the proposed compromise with three attorneys who represented opposing sides in the pending litigation.

In so doing Supervisor Hickey prevented a proper compromise of this matter and, on account of the urgency in matter of time forced the attorneys representing the initiative petition, to again take up the matter of an initiative election. Such an election will be a special election and if called as provided by law will entail upon the county an enormous expense, estimated at $30,000.

We urge Supervisor Hickey to support his vote of June 2 at the meeting on next Monday.

We urge residents of the north end of the county to request such action on his part.

The time has come when the Bay side of San Mateo county should have its rights. Let it no longer be said that 3,435 people dominate 73,700 people.

AUTOMOBILES CAUSE INCREASE IN ACCIDENTS

Last year the accidental death toll reached a new high record of 97,000, as compared with 95,086 in 1928, according to the National Safety Council. This increase was due entirely to the automobile which claimed 31,000 lives, or 3,000 more than the previous year. All other causes of death show a gradual decline.

Accidents to school children are increasing far less rapidly than accidents to adults, thanks largely to the accident prevention work in schools which is encouraged by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters. Between 1922 and 1929 total fatalities of persons of all ages increased almost 25 per cent while in the same period accidental deaths of children under 15 gained less than one-tenth of one per cent.

The states with driver's license laws are making better records in relation to their own past experience than the states where examinations are not required.

Reports from two cities where fatalities decreased during the year are interesting. In St. Louis, the credit is largely given to effective school work, school patrols and strict enforcement of traffic laws by police. In San Francisco, to scientific studies, adequate enforcement, safety work in schools, and a continuous campaign of education by the press, radio stations and service clubs.

The National Safety Council points out one encouraging factor in the analysis—eliminating the annual toll of deaths due to the automobile, the national death rate from all other accidents has declined 30 per cent since 1913.

MUSCLE SHOALS AGAIN

Some weeks ago the Senate passed the Norris resolution providing for government distribution of power and for fertilizer experimentation at Muscle Shoals. On May 28 the House passed the Reece substitute resolution dealing with the same subject, but providing for leasing the Shoals properties to private parties.

The two measures are almost diametrically opposite in their provisions, and the efforts to reconcile them in conference will be of interest.

The Reece bill is backed by the President and the Republican majority in the House, while the Norris plan is supported by the Senators of both parties who favor government operation. The Norris adherents will do everything possible to defeat the House bill, and they do not seem disposed to compromise on any sort of measure which provides for leasing the Muscle Shoals properties. Anything may happen but as this is written it looks very much as though the ten-year-old controversy is still a long way from settlement.

Many cities have a commission form of government, and the United States seems headed in that direction.

TIME'S HEALING BALM

"Time dissolves all things" said Aristotle, the Athenian philosopher, some twenty-two centuries ago. That time dissolves enmity was once more strikingly illustrated by an occurrence at Brunswick, Georgia, some days ago.

There, says the Associated Press, "descendants of the Blue and Gray hosts of the '60's stood side by side while a Massachusetts delegation returned to its rightful owners an antiquated clock which Yankee sailors carried away from the plantation of Thomas Butler King during the War Between the States."

The ceremony of restitution took place on the King plantation, in a building formerly used as a slave hospital, but now a caddies' clubhouse, in the presence of a distinguished gathering.

Congressman Martin of Massachusetts presented the clock to Senator George of Georgia, both making appropriate addresses. A Massachusetts mayor and editor responded to the welcome addresses by Georgians, and the clock was finally turned over to Isaac Aiken, a grandson of Thomas King, original owner of the ancient timepiece.

The ceremony was similar to that witnessed on many occasions which have marked the return of captured battle flags of the Civil War. And during the proceedings the old clock pursued the even tenor of its way by ticking off the seconds as it has done during its years of captivity.

The graceful gesture by the Massachusetts delegation, received with equal grace by their fellow countrymen of Georgia, again demonstrates how wounds and scars, even those of fratricidal war, may be dissolved by the healing balm of time.

MOST GIRLS WOULD WED

Marriage is the final ambition of 85 per cent of all girls up to the age of 35 in the business world, according to a household research bureau which has been investigating the subject. It also disclosed that their activities and earnings in business lead these girls to higher standards of living after marriage.

A survey among 1,500 women employed in New York City shows that after three years' employment their average earnings are $33.50 a week, of which $7.56 is spent for clothes, $9.53 is given to dependents and charity, and that $11.66 goes for other expenses, while $4.75 is saved.

Habits of thrift acquired early in the employed woman's life are reflected in increased family income, with better homes, better food, clothing, automobiles and opportunities for travel. "Manufacturers study and adapt themselves to this situation," says the bureau.

It has been found that of the 572 gainful occupations in the United States, women are employed in all but 35, more than 570,000 being in business in New York City alone.

Yet, in spite of the independence which their employment gives, most of them would look with favor upon matrimony, even though many would have to continue to earn money after marriage. Fortunately for mere man, women are like that.

COAL VS. WATER POWER

There is still in operation in this country a few old steam plants which require as much as 10 pounds of coal to produce a kilowatt-hour of electricity. Recently the average amount of coal required has ranged between two and three pounds for each kilowatt-hour, although many modern plants use much less.

Now comes the announcement that by means of a new mercury vapor boiler a Hartford plant can produce a kilowatt-hour with only about seven-tenths of a pound of coal. While the equipment used in attaining this result is expensive, due to its being the only unit of its kind yet produced, it is confidently believed that this initial cost of equipment may soon be materially reduced.

The mercury vapor boiler is only one of the many new developments which are tending to reduce the cost of electric energy, which is now considerably less than it was a few years ago. These improvements will also decrease the desirability of developing many inferior waterpower sites, as electricity will be produced more cheaply by coal unless a hydro-electric plant is more advantageously located.

"ODIOUS TO THE LAW"

The recent decision of the Massachusetts Supreme Court holding that a proposed monopolistic state motor vehicle insurance fund was unconstitutional, is of great interest to all the states.

The decision held the proposed state fund as a monopoly, "odious to the law," and said that "as to general business affairs such a law would interfere with the constitutional rights of every person to life, liberty and property."

The big question to decide in the problem of the state entering into any line of business is whether or not the people wish to uphold their constitutional rights to life, liberty and property or forfeit such rights to the state.

ONE THOUSAND MILES AN HOUR

Certain aviation engineers predict that airplanes may eventually attain a speed of 1,000 miles an hour; also that non-stop flights around the world will be made.

As the apparent movement of the sun, due to the earth's rotation, is less than 1,000 miles an hour in latitudes above and below the equator, such speed would present some interesting collateral experiences.

For example: Traveling west, one might circle the globe in daylight, as the plane would keep pace with the sun. Traveling east, the plane would meet the sun twice, so that it would apparently experience two days in 24 hours. Stranges of all, if the plane were flying somewhat faster than the visible movement of the sun, it might start out shortly after sunset and flew west to overtake the sun, which would appear to rise in the west. Continuing its flight, it would finally leave the sun so far behind that it would appear to set in the east.

A watch carried under either of these conditions might tell how long the plane had been in the air, but would be of little use in determining the time of day at any given point during the flight.

San Jose policemen are better pistol shots than local national guardsmen, they demonstrated when the team from the police department showed a score of 749 out of a possible 800 while the guardsmen scored 615. The competition was for a silver cup.

Tipping your automobile over isn't being done this season in the best traffic circles. J. Boronta, of Monterey, found it out as he rounded a corner, allowing his machine to slither over on one side. Fearing that Boronta might make the practice a habit unless corrected, police charged him with reckless driving.

J. W. Motley, Visalia cafe owner, is firmly convinced someone who knew him rather personally robbed his house of $90 in cash recently. The robber left behind $4000 in jewels which had been left upon a dressing table in plain sight. His friends had often joked him about "always buying a lot of fake jewelry" and the joke had become quite generally known. The jewels were not fakes.

Friends since boyhood, James Monroe and Roy Hillhouse, Woodland, will oppose each other for the office of sheriff August 26. Monroe is the incumbent and Hillhouse was once a deputy and later constable of Woodland township. Both are among the oldest peace officers of northern California.

Santa Cruz' most unsightly bridge, the concrete span over the San Lorenzo River on Water street is to be modernized in the near future, according to Mayor Fred W. Swanton. The bridge has different super-structure on each side and the old unsightly street car tracks are still on the bridge. The structure will be made the same on both sides and the tracks torn out.

Under the direction of Supervisor William R. Lee and a committee of the local chamber of commerce, work is progressing rapidly on the clearing and levelling of the land purchased for the Mott airport. The tract lies midway between Dunsmuir and Mt. "I'm not a squealer," Pain-racked in the San Quentin prison hospital, Ted War, a convict, remained true to the same convict code which prevented fellow convicts from naming War's assailant. The man crumpled to the ground recently while standing in line waiting for dinner. He had been stabbed by a fellow prisoner, but by whom or why the prison authorities could not learn despite exhaustive questioning of convicts near the wounded man. He is 28, and serving a four-year sentence from Fresno for second degree burglary. Dr. Leo L. Stanley, prison physician, said War probably would recover.

Six national insurance companies were recently made defendants in eight suits asking validation of fire insurance claims aggregating $78,500. The suits filed in the Federal Court by the Detroit Security Trust Company of Michigan as trustees, for the Feather River Pine Mills, Inc., charge the defendants with refusing to pay claims on a $1,000,000 fire that occurred at the Oroville plant of the lumber company three years ago. Defendants are the Springfield Fire and Marine Insurance Company, Firemens Insurance Company of Newark, National Fire Insurance Company, Transcontinental Insurance Company, and London and Provincial Marine and General Insurance Company.

A new device successfully used by Rex G. Finney was being investigated by parachute jumpers at Los Angeles recently. In addition to the ordinary parachute, Finney, when he jumped from a plane from a height of 3500 feet, had a sail which was sewed between the legs of his trousers. The device is said to aid the jumper in maneuvering for a landing place.

James Sampson Russell, Shingle Springs, El Dorado county, who recently attained his one hundredth birthday, ascribed his long life to regular hours and "plenty of exercise in the open air." The Argonaut Mining Company, operating at Jackson, Amador county, has brought suit at that place for $20,000 damages against the Coast Manufacturing Supply Company, alleging that a defective fuse caused the death of one miner and the mangle of another. The mining company asserts the fuse let a dynamite charge go off prematurely, killing Claude Smith and injuring Harvey Jones so badly he will never be able to work again.

Measured by tax receipts, Los Angeles today qualified as the "doggiest" city in California. Receipts from the sale of dog licenses totaled $117,766 in Los Angeles during the past year, while the revenue from Fido's tags produced only $13,263 in San Francisco and $12,125 in Oakland. These canine statistics, compiled by State Controller Ray L. Riley, also showed that $826 worth of dog tags were sold in Burlingame, $264 in Oxnard and $240 in Martinez.

Crack pilots from all parts of the bay region thrilled hundreds of visitors at Colusa recently as the three day program celebrating the opening of Colusa's new airport came to a close. Capt. John A. George Donner; her stepmother, the heroic Tasman Donner, and most of the party Donner led from Springfield, Ill., to their fate on what is now Donner Lake. Mrs. App, then a girl of 12 years, was rescued.

San Francisco's Chamber of Commerce has endorsed the proposal to improve existing thoroughfares from Stockton to Halfmoon Bay via the San Mateo-Hayward bridge. Frederick H. Meyer, chairman of the chamber's highway committee, said: "This new routing would form a very important connecting route from the San Joaquin Valley to the peninsula and would constitute a lateral which, no doubt, would carry a tremendous volume of traffic." The routing would involve a definite road to the bridge from which connections would be made to the Bayshore highway, El Camino Real, Skyline boulevard and the new Shoreline highway, now under construction.

The trouble with educating missionaries in California is the difficulty in prying them away from California. So Dr. P. T. Magan, head of the College of Medical Evangelists at San Bernardino, told 12,000 delegates to the Seventh Day Adventist international convention recently at San Francisco. "If the fathers of our faith had clung to New England as some of the graduates of our school cling to California, we would never have spread our message to the world," he declared. Less than one-third of the graduates go into denominational work, he said. The College of Medical Evangelists now enjoys the largest foundation for medical research on the Pacific Coast, Doctor Magan stated. That is the $2,000,000 contributed by W. K. Kellogg for the Coffey-Humber Cancer Reserve Laboratory.

Oregon Akers, 78 years of age, who crossed the plains to California by ox cart in 1855 and was one of Kern's oldest and most picturesque pioneers, committed suicide today at his ranch home in the Buena Vista district. He had been in ill health since the death of his wife three years ago and lately had been despondent. Telling his nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Akers, that he was going for a walk he disappeared and a short time later was found dead in a barn. He had hanged himself with a rope stretched from a rafter. Akers had lived in Kern county more than five decades, most of which time was spent on the old Buena Vista ranch. In 1875 he was commissioned to haul the first municipal flagpole to Bakersfield. Taking sixteen mules and two huge wagons he journeyed to Sequoia Forest where he obtained a giant redwood. The trip required several weeks. The flagpole was placed on the corner of Nineteenth street and Chester avenue where it now stands.

Preliminary steps toward the construction of a $100,000 hospital and sanitarium on a fifteen acre site, near Mt. Shasta City, have been taken by medical leaders of Siskiyou county. Dr. Louis J. Listo of Mt. Shasta City heads the organization.

Six hundred students of the Reedley joint union high school and junior college returned to their classes bringing to an end a strike of a week's duration, which cost the taxpayers of the high school district $1,000.

He had an odd feeling of not knowing what was going to happen as he left Ennerdale and entered his home. He could feel himself under a strain roused by the nearness of explanations which it was Claire's right to hear and his duty to make. It would be hard to talk about Carla, as he must, even should Claire in her wisdom ask for nothing.

Claire was waiting for him in her room. This act of thoughtfulness pleased him. She knew that in a peculiarly embarrassing moment they should be alone. Both were sensitive, each a little fearful of what one or the other might betray in their first greeting. He was thinking this when he went to her. As her door closed behind him, his first impression was of a room filled with flowers. Claire, like Carla, loved them. The air was delicately fragrant with their perfume. Claire was bending over a mass of white roses when he entered, and then came toward him with both hands held out. She did not put her arms about him or offer him her lips. Yet never had he seen such a light of happiness shining in her eyes. He made a movement to kiss her, but she drew back in such a way that her act seemed scarcely to be repelling him.

"Not now, Paul. Not until we have talked. Then, if you want to kiss me, you may."

She was astonishingly free of the tension which he had anticipated, and as she stood with her fingers clasped warmly about his, telling him how glad she was that he was alive, and how doomed to despair and unhappiness she would have been if he had not lived to return to her, he wondered if it were Claire, his wife, who was talking to him, or another Claire—some one he had never known. For she seemed, all at once, to have drawn herself farther away from him than she had ever been, but in such a sweet and friendly way that the change in her seemed one which could not bring hurt with it.

It was Claire's fight that was hardest. It was going to take a Joan of Arc courage to say what she had planned to say.

She made him sit near her, so they were facing each other.

"Paul, we are going to be honest. You will promise me that?"

He knew he was preparing to equivocate as he gave his word. A lie to save Claire from hurt was more creditable than truth. The impulse to shield her, to keep from her all suspicion of his love for Carla, swept over him as he looked at her. She was like the flowers on the table, as easily crushed, he thought. More vividly than ever he saw the difference between her and Carla. Carla would fight on through tragedy, even to death. Claire, suffering more, would droop and fade like a petal in a rose, shrinking from the quicker and more physical action which the other would find for himself. He was not analyzing himself, or her. The thought—like a picture—impressed itself upon him, and Claire, gazing at him in these epic, introspective moments, as if partly seeing the swift visioning in his mind, surprised him by saying:

"Paul, I wonder if you know, just how much I honor and respect you. I wonder if you realize how fine you are. I have failed to play my part—as your wife. I have not let you know these things as I should. The fault in our lives is not yours. It is mine. I think I could have made you love me. Yet I saw the unfairness of it unless I could make myself love you first. I hoped and prayed for that."

"There wasn't love when we were married, on either side. You did not love me, not in the way you wanted to love a woman, and my feeling for you was an immeasurable respect and admiration for an honorable gentleman. It seems trite and superficial to say that the interests of our families brought us together, does it not? But it is true. I wanted to love you. But I discovered—after a little while—that something was in my way."

"I know," he found himself saying. "You couldn't love an animal, Claire. I was that, until the day you came to the Mistassini. I have been blind and brutal. God knows I am only half worthy of you."

"And Carla?"

So softly did his wife speak Carla's name that for a moment it seemed as if he had not heard it.

"We have promised ourselves to be honest," she continued. "Do you remember a letter I wrote you from Paris in which I said I was coming to you and that I was sure a more important thing would happen for us in your woods than any journey, like your promised one around the world, could give?"

"Yes, I remember."

"Do you know—now—why I told you that?"

"I have only wondered."

"It was because I had seen, because I had read between the lines of your letters, because I knew at last a great love had come into your life, and that Carla Haldan had brought it to you. You do not love me. You love Carla. And, loving her, you would sacrifice everything for my sake."

His fabric of lies was gone, his soul laid bare under the gaze of his wife's eyes.

"I want to hear you say it, Paul." She was repeating Carla's words whispered to him in the blackness of the earth. "That is why I came to you there. A woman may hide her love from a man, but not from another woman, and it was impossible for Carla to keep her secret from me. Yours was still more open, though I saw you making a magnificent fight. I know, Paul. But I want to hear it from your lips. I must hear it. Do you love Carla Haldan?"

"Yes, I love her."

"More than any other woman in the world?"

"I could only love one woman in that way." He was conscious of having struck a deadly blow, a hurt he would rather have died than inflict upon Claire. It had dragged itself from him in spite of his determination, and he waited for his punishment, its effect on her. Claire's eyes did not waver. She did not flinch. A starry, radiant light came into her face, and she gave a breathless, half-articulate cry, not of shock or of pain, but of joy. He saw the blood flushing her cheeks, the tenseness leaving her body, and they sat for a time in silence, neither making an effort to speak.

Then he said:

"I thought I would hurt you. And you are glad?"

"Yes, I am glad. I thank God you love Carla."

She rose to her feet, and took a letter from the table. She was trying to keep from crying as she gave it to him.

"I want you to read it and then come back to me," she said. "This evening, if you will, Paul. I lack the courage to tell you things. You will understand when you open it, alone."

He went to the Kirke-Durand building and lost himself in the human stream going up with the elevators. On one of the floors was an office, always ready for him. He shut himself in and locked the door.

He opened the letter. There were many pages, closely written in Claire's hand. With almost childish candor they began to tell him of a woman's fight to triumph over herself. Like an indestructible redolence they breathed the sureness of Claire's faith in herself. Without emotional effort she told him that unless Carla had come into his life she would never have let him know what she was about to reveal. There was no man in the world more worthy of a woman's love than he, she said. Yet, from the beginning, she had been unable to build her respect and admiration into greater things she should have given him. That was one reason why, repelling the thought of making him care greatly for her when she could not love him, she had kept herself away from him so much. One's passion for another, in its holiest form, was guided by a single force. One might stem that and hold it back, but it was impossible to make it die. Such a love was Carla's for him. Then she spoke of another man. It was of Jimmy Ennerdale, the sculptor, who was driving his way so persistently to success. She had accepted Jimmy almost as a brother during her girlhood, but very soon after her marriage the truth had come to her, she said, and had grown stronger with each year. She cared for Ennerdale just as Carla cared for him. It was Paul who might have been her brother, with such frank and unembarrassed simplicity did she confide in him. She knew that Ennerdale loved her, and repeated that a man could not conceal that fact from a woman, though he did not express it in words, and she was sure Jimmy had no idea of her sentiment toward him. This love for Jimmy was the other reason, the more vital of the two, which had held her aloof from Paul. She loved Jimmy's work and wanted to become a part of it. She had never held it to be possible, and had not thought of it in that way until she knew that he loved Carla.

Cuban Death Penalties

The Cuban embassy says that the execution in Cuba, when the death penalty is carried out, depends upon the condition of the man sentenced. If the condemned man is a member of the army, he is shot by a squad of soldiers. In case of a civilian being condemned to death, the execution is carried out by garrote. Garrote is a chair similar to the electric chair, which has a collar of iron and hide, which is fitted to the neck of the victim. This collar is attached to a large screw which, on moving, compresses and suffocates, causing death by strangulation or broken neck. Generally the victim is declared dead within ten or twelve minutes after the execution. It is a very old form of penalty, used in Spain since 1832.

Choose Their Own Music

According to an occupational census there are practically no women piano tuners in this country. Much has been said about women forsaking motherhood for careers, but it seems that most of them would rather take care of grand babies than baby grands. —New Orleans States.

FANS HAVE LITTLE USE FOR ARBITERS

President Heydler Says Umpires Have Few Friends.

After his many years in baseball, John A. Heydler, president of the National league, is convinced that players and fans have little use for the umpires. Heydler just about says so in his "special instructions" to the officials.

If there is any doubt about it, read as follows, and find out for yourself: "Study the rules daily. A thorough knowledge of them is your greatest asset. Be courteous and firm and so compel respect from all, and never lose sight of the fact that friendship for the umpire, appreciation of his arduous duties, and practical co-operation in his troubles rarely extend outside of this office."

Another thing, Heydler likes umpires who are able to "stand on their own feet" and are not everlastingly appealing to a fellow mate to make the decision in some intricate play. He wants them to be in the right spot at the right time and get their own plays.

Fisherman and sportsmen generally will be interested in the announcement that the Anglers' club of Sarasota, Fla., will give $5,000 in cash prizes to anglers and guides for the best fish caught during the national tarpon tournament to be held there May 9 to July 15 inclusive. This is said to be the largest sum ever offered in a fishing tournament. These awards are in addition to cups, trophies, fishing tackle, etc., usually given at such an event.

Ed Barrow, business manager of the New York Yankees, has issued a warning to gamblers who make the stadium their headquarters while the Yankees are playing at home. "I am opening heavy fire on those who bet openly at the stadium on Sundays," said Barrow. "I have prepared warnings which will be handed to patrons, and I hope the fans do not take offense and will appreciate what I am trying to do. I have been fighting gamblers at ball parks ever since I came into the game, and I am never going to give it up. The situation at the stadium has become serious, and I am going to stamp out the evil."

Harry J. Rockefeller, graduate manager of athletics at Rutgers university, announces that Dennis Mulligan, captain of the West Point football team in 1923, has been appointed coach of the Rutgers freshman football eleven.

This gives the Rutgers coaching staff two former West Point stars. Mulligan succeeds Don Storck, his teammate for four years on the army squad, who will be chief assistant to Head Coach Rockefeller next fall.

Another boost for the managerial ability of Donie Bush, leader of the White Sox, is the fine play of Bill Cissell, Sox shortstop, who is playing second base under the Bush regime. Cissell gives Bush credit. In 1928 Cissell was a widely heralded star of the Coast league, playing with Portland. "Miskey is said to have paid $123,000 for his release, $75,000 in cash and $48,000 in players."

"Bush has helped me immensely," says Cissell. "He has shown me several things that have been helpful to me, and I am playing with greater confidence than ever before. Bush is the greatest manager I've played under."

George Duncan, a gentleman who knows golf if anyone ever did, picks Hoylake as the hardest course in Great Britain. It is the No. 1 course on his list.

There is no watering system at Hoylake (watering systems being strange to nearly all British courses) and Hoylake often dries out. When the course is dry it is like cement. The greens turn light brown in color and become smooth as glass. A pitch shot is impossible; the player must run up the ball.

"Like the weather so Hoylake," they say over there and the American players who have tried Hoylake agree.

Mark for Krenz

Eric C. W. Krenz of California, discus thrower and shot putter of note, who established a new world's record for the discus throw by heaving the missile 167 feet 2 inches. The former record, held by himself, was 163 feet 8 1/2 inches.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

HURRIED CALLS

"We tried to arrange what we'd see first—and we couldn't arrange any exact order," said Cosmo, as, they traveled in their plane through the sky. "But we thought you'd like to see the planets first on account of your Earth being a planet."

"I hope I'll be able to recognize them now when I see them from the Earth," Harry said. "It would be dreadful not to know them by sight when I've talked to them."

"Look over your sky charts, and find all your friends," Cosmo suggested. "But remember that you'll see them in different places at different seasons—I'll have to tell you something about that later."

"Of course you'll always be able to see your own Moon and then it is so nearby. After all, the Sun isn't so far away—a mere ninety-three million miles."

"A mere nothing," said Harry, chuckling. But Cosmo was quite serious as he repeated Harry's words. "A mere nothing."

Now the pilot took them for a little ride and Cosmo said:

"You'll have to use your imagination a good deal on this trip. In the old days, as you know, people gave names to stars and made up stories about them. They saw pictures in the way the stars were grouped and named them after the different pictures they fancied they saw."

"In your day, now, they do not imagine so much but they know more. I'm not so sure which is really better—of course to know more is very fine, but it was jolly the way they made up stories about the stars so many years ago. Your present-day people give numbers and letters to new stars instead of names, and keep adding to the great figures and distances."

"If you will draw a kind of outline around the groups of stars you will be able to fit in some of the old sky pictures."

"Tell me this Cosmo. You spoke of it just a minute or two ago. Why do we see the stars in one place and then in a few months see them in different places? That has always puzzled me. You said something about the seasons?"

"In the time in which you go round the Sun," commenced Cosmo, (and Harry was once again so much amused at the way they all kept speaking to him as though he were the whole Earth) "a year passes. And so you're looking at the stars from a different position in the various seasons."

"But dear me, now people are finding stars brighter than those of the first magnitude which was always the way they spoke of the brightest stars, so they'll have to be adding words to describe what they see!"

"There's another thing, Cosmo. I don't see how they can take measurements up in the sky."

"Very much the same way as surveyors measure on land, but in the sky they must compare sizes, divide the sky into regions and make use of high powered telescopes and photographic telescopes. It's pretty mathematical but if you are interested you can find out all this when you're older and study higher mathematics."

"Do the stars ever bump?"

"There are some traffic regulations in the sky."

"Besides the way the planets travel along the Zodiac?"

"Oh, indeed, yes, and then the distances between stars keep them from bumping."

"Do they go quickly?"

"Well—the Sun goes along at about twelve and a half miles a second. That's not very speedy. Twenty miles a second is about average, though some go as quickly as six hundred miles a second."

"Isn't it dangerous when they go that quickly?"

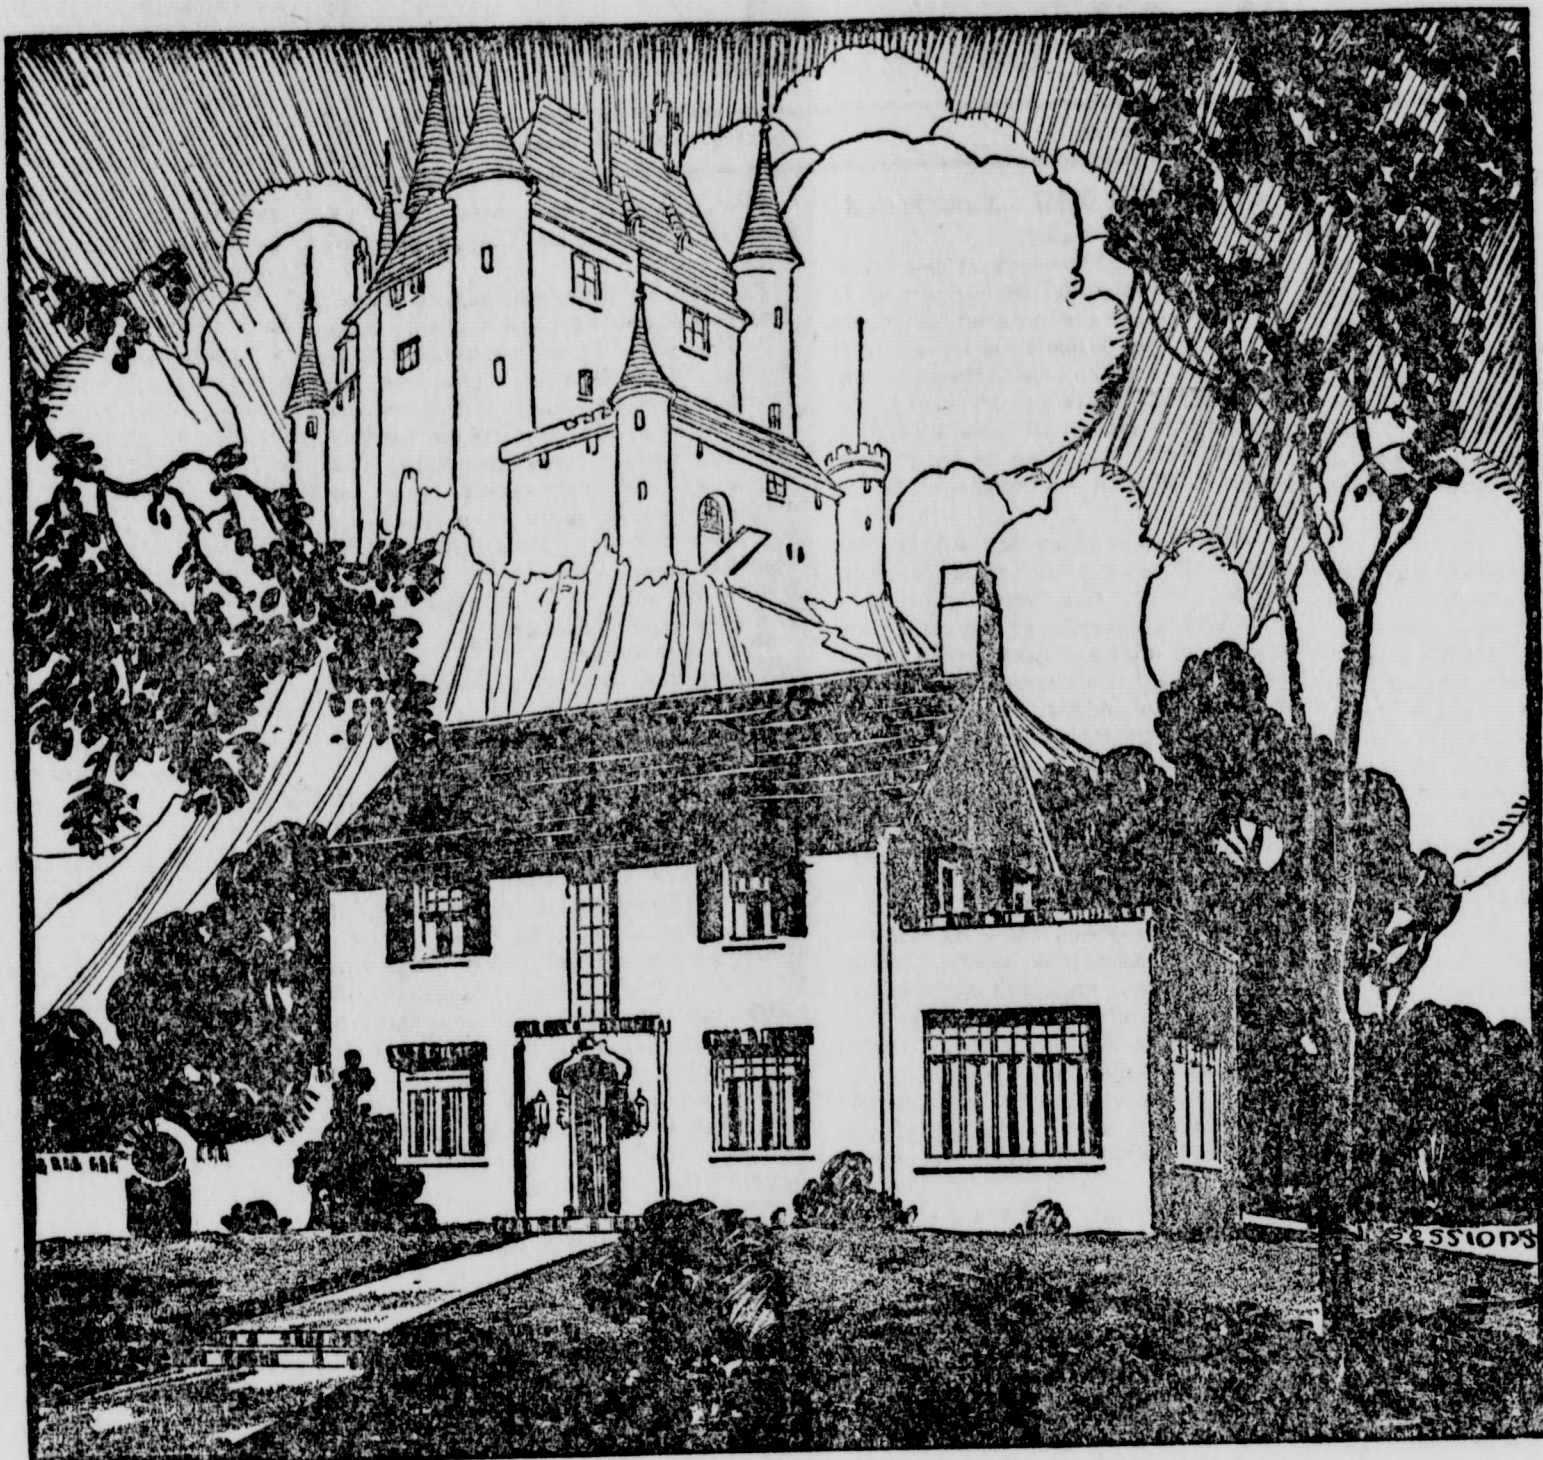

"No. The more quickly a star travels, the more it will keep clear of certain directions in the heavens."

"Like having special roadways for rapidly moving vehicles," suggested Harry.

"About that way, yes, that's about the idea. Now the usual life of a star is about a quadrillion years—"

"Good heavens!" Harry shouted. "Yes, good heavens," smiled Cosmo. "But you see they get used to keeping their special routes, and maybe once only in a good many billion years would there be a collision!"

"The Old Sky Pictures."

Our Homes Are Our Castles

The very foundation of American life is the home.

A community is judged by its homes! As individuals, we are judged by our homes!

Five-sixths of the people of this community are living in family circles—homes. Over half of the space in this community is devoted to homes—houses and yards.

Fully half of our lifetime is spent in our homes. It is the center of our activities—the source of our greatest blessings.

Truly, our homes are our castles.

Your banker will tell you that the home is one of the greatest factors in the financial success of the average man and his family. It is usually the first and chief investment. Bankers will tell you that they loan more money to home owners than to any other class of people.

Public Officials will tell you that home owners are community builders. That the majority of the tax-payers are home owners and that they form the back-bone of the community structure.

The real estate man will tell you that more money is invested in homes and in home property than in anything else.

The builder and contractor will tell you that a true home, well financed, pays for itself. A home that will pay for itself and add to the convenience, comfort, pleasure, economy and efficiency of living, is the Ideal Home.

The lawyer will tell you that the home is the largest part of most estates, inheritances, financial, as well as sentimental—that home loving people are law-abiding people.

The insurance man will tell you that a home and a family is a fine form of insurance—that home owners are good insurance risks.

The churches will tell you that the possessors of homes are the chief supporters of the church—that they provide the physical and material assistance necessary for the religious activity of the community.

The schools will tell you that the home is the greatest adjunct to education. That home owners largely pay for the building and maintenance of the schools.

Civic and commercial clubs admit that homes form one of the best advertisements for the town—that house yards are more extensive than parks, and their appearance more important to the "Town Beautiful."

Business, professional men and skilled labor will all tell you that the building, furnishing and maintenance of homes is necessary to their business. That aside from the financial gain for themselves they are interested in helping you plan, build and maintain your home, helping you beautify your grounds.

Home owners are a double asset to a community. They take nothing from the community, but contribute abundantly.

Nothing is more constructive in the upbuilding of our community than good homes. Nothing is more destructive in our community than sub-standard homes. One of the chief factors in the community's existence is the HOME.

TEACH BOYS POWER USE

More extended instruction in the handling of machinery, and particularly in the use of electricity, is advocated for farm boys by the Federal Board for Vocational Education, according to the southern regional agent.

He declares that electricity is rapidly becoming used to a greater extent on farms, particularly in the South and in other sections where water power is available. For this reason he urges the necessity for requiring vocational agricultural teachers to study the operation of electrical equipment, so that they may teach the boys under their charge how to employ it in practical farming.

Recently a specialist in the Department of Agriculture pointed out that mechanical power can be produced at less than half the cost of animal power. The increased cost of man power is also an important factor in hastening the employment of a greater number and a larger variety of labor-saving machines.

The farmer of the future must have a certain amount of mechanical knowledge, hence the farm boy should begin as early as possible to master the practical operation of power-operated machinery.

Uncle Sam herded the Indians off on some worthless-looking land in the old Indian Territory. Jackson Barnett, a descendant of one of these Creek aborigines, refused to select an allotment from Indian lands a few years ago, but the government gave him one, anyway. Up to date he has received more than three million dollars from oil found on this same tract.

A Boston man and his wife are both in the advertising business and their 6-year-old daughter hears a good deal of shop talk around home. When she returned from Sunday school recently with a card containing a Bible text, her mother asked what it was. Little Dorothy shrugged her shoulders and said: "Oh, it's only an ad about heaven."

That young Michigan pugilist who is studying for the ministry is probably looking forward to some lively bouts with Satan.

FISH AND GAME NOTES

By J. H. NEUSTADT

The farmer and sportsman—are they enemies? Are they friends? Do they thoroughly understand each other? Do they respect each other's rights?

On what general principles can they unite and profit? Can they both be real sportsmen, each doing his share in the preservation of wild life and real sport?

Minnesota used to be called the Indian's paradise, and what a paradise it was. There was an abundance of big and small game, fowls of every description, and the streams and lakes were full of fish, furnishing food for the red men. There were no laws, rules or regulations in those days. There was plenty for everybody. Nothing obstructed the hunter from having his own sweet way—no limits of any kind—no restrictions. The country was one happy hunting ground.

All this changed as the white settlers came into possession of the land. Gradually game became more scarce. Fences and buildings were erected, and many new problems confronted the sportsmen.

Much progress has been made in coming to a common understanding of what the rights of the settlers or farmers are, and what the rights of sportsmen are. Farmers can be classified into at least three groups when it comes to dealing with wild life. Some farmers take little or no interest in hunting as a sport. They have no objection to the other fellow getting all the game as long as he causes no trouble or expense to his premises. Other farmers feel that they own the land and furnish the food for the wild game and consequently should have preference to the exclusion of those who live in the city.

Then we have the real red-blooded farmer who is not only a true sportsman, but who is willing to share with anyone who respects the rights of the people who live on the land. The latter we believe are in the majority.

The hunter in most cases has brought ill will on himself by shooting turkeys, geese and ducks belonging to the farmer, and by allowing dogs to chase poultry, sheep, etc., often showing no respect for growing crops or livestock. Seldom does he ask for the privilege of hunting through the woods and fields, and often cuts fence wires and inconveniences the farmer.

To secure the good will of the farmer, the sportsman should observe the law and be considerate of the farmer's property, not firing guns close to the house or barnyard, endangering humans as well as livestock; not leave gates open or cut wire fences, causing extra labor and grief for the owner. Permission to hunt on his premises should be secured if there is any question about restrictions. Common courtesy goes a long way in establishing friendly relations where mutual rights are concerned.

VALUE OF VIRGINIA GAME GREATER THAN FORESTS

"Virginia's wild life has a dollars and cents value greater even than the forests, aside from its worth for recreation purposes," Major A. Willis Robertson, chairman of the state commission of game and inland fisheries, asserted before the Virginia commercial forestry conference in urging development of game resources.

"Cultivation of wild life can be made an important factor to encourage reforestation," Major Robertson said. "Anyone who has attempted to interest the average citizen in planting trees to wait 35 to 50 years to harvest the crop knows how impossible the undertaking is," he declared. "There must be an added incentive, and this can best be provided by constructive game management, coupled with adequate fire protection."

During the last fiscal year, in addition to the land owners and their families who fished and hunted without license, 144,000 persons bought licenses, the speaker said. The gross revenue of the game protection fund during this period was $311,000, and the budget for the coming biennium provides for expenditures of approximately $385,000 for the first year and $390,000 for the second year by the commission.

It is engaged in activities extending to every county and city of the state, and entails the employment of a larger personnel than any other state agency with the exception of the department of highways, he explained.

Major Robertson urged restocking of fishing streams in Virginia, which, done adequately, could be made to furnish at least 500,000 non-resident fishermen in addition to meeting the demands of residents, he said.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderly at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store. Edwards' Drug Store, Mission street, near San Jose avenue. —Adv.

Poor Grammar

Teacher (to boy sitting idly in school during writing time: "Henry, why are you not writing?"

Henry: "I ain't got no pen."

Teacher: "Where's your grammar?"

"You look like Helen Brown."

"Is that so? Well, I look even worse in red."

"I left a bottle of Scotch in the train."

"Gosh, that's tough. Was it turned in to the lost and found department?"

Light Laughter

A gentleman slipped on the top stair of the subway and started sliding to the bottom. Half way down he collided with a lady, knocked her off her feet, and the two continued the journey together. After they had reached the bottom, the lady, still dazed, continued to sit on the gentleman's chest. Looking up at her politely, he finally exclaimed: "Madam, I'm sorry, but this is as far as I go."
